A Tale of Two Lighting Design Projects

We have many excellent lighting projects in the Cleveland Area, but seldom are the local designers given the opportunity to talk about their projects. On April 14, we have A Tale of Two Lighting Projects which will highlight the lighting artistry of Marian Perez from Karpinski Engineering for The Cleveland State Student Center and Ardra Zinkon from Tec Inc Engineering & Design for her design of the Rice Branch of the Cleveland Public Library.

The Cleveland State Student Center is a 138,000 square foot, three-story facility with a new ballroom/conference center, campus book store, student government offices and a food service facility. The Student Center is designed to achieve a LEED Silver rating and recently won the Cleveland Engineering Society Award of Excellence for new construction for large projects.

The Rice Branch of the Cleveland Public Library System is a 14,000 square foot urban public library. The Branch is the first free-standing public library in the state to achieve a LEED Silver rating. With a need for future growth and flexibility within the library collection, the lighting design employed multiple strategies including DALI controls, daylight harvesting and ballast tuning.

Marian and Ardra will present their projects, not only showing the positive aspects of project design, but also the design process they went through and some of the lessons learned on the way to creating a great design.

I hope you will all be able to attend the program and see lighting design at its best in Cleveland.

President's Report

On April 14, we have A Tale of Two Lighting Projects which will highlight the lighting artistry of Marian Perez from Karpinski Engineering for The Cleveland State Center and Ardra Zinkon from Tec Inc Engineering & Design for her design of the Rice Branch of the Cleveland public Library. I hope you will all be able to attend the program and see lighting design at its best in Cleveland.

We would like to thank Rick Quinlan of Epic Design for presenting the Energy Efficient Parking Garage Lighting; A Case Study sponsored by Venture Lighting on March 31.

In May, we have a new/old sponsor, Lighting Dynamics who will be sponsoring a speaker from Encelium Lighting Controls to give us an update of lighting control regulations and the options and methods available for meeting those requirements.

Spring is here and it is time to sponsor or register for the annual IES Cleveland Section Golf Outing in June. The proceeds from the event are for the CTS Student Scholarship presented in May and to support your local Cleveland IES Section. So chase the spiders out of our golf bag and dust off your clubs for a fun day in June. See page 3 of this Lumen Press for details and sponsorship opportunities.

Thank You for Voting in the Cleveland Section Election of Officers and Board Members. We will post the new slate of officers in the June Lumen Press.
