Can the IES have an impact on your life?

Join us on December 10 as Lew Sternberg addresses this important question. Lew will speak to the changes that have taken place in the IES over the last half century since the society was created in 1906; his presentation seeks to educate us on the expectations of the IES, and our responsibilities as members for advancing the goals and mission of the organization.

Lewis S. Sternberg recently received the Louis B. Marks Award, in recognition of exceptional service to the Society of a non-technical nature. In his 62 years of membership, Sternberg has continuously served the Society, in thoughtful, visionary and inspired ways. Sternberg has focused relentlessly, but not exclusively, on education. With his skillful leadership, the mission of the IES was redefined, bringing research and education to the forefront. The Lighting Research Institute was formed and the Lighting Research Education Fund was developed, precipitating new fundraising partnerships for lighting research and education. He was also instrumental in creating a new international perspective for the IES, addressing the 1983 CIE Conference to present the innovative and successful funding methods that supported the expansion of research and education initiatives.

Sternberg's IES service includes chairing the 1976 IES Annual Conference, the Society Bylaws Committee, the Lighting Research and Education Committee and the Board of Nominations at various times from 1976–1986. He also served as RVP, VP of Regional Activities and Senior VP. Sternberg was IES president in 1982–1983 and received the Distinguished Service Award in 1984.

We are fortunate to have Lew as a member of our section. I hope you will join us for this important program.

President's Report: Part 1 of 2

The IES Annual Conference was held in Indianapolis November 8–10 and the Cleveland section was well represented with over 20 attendees. Our members participated in many facets of the conference, including the EP Workshop on Saturday, The Leadership forum and District 7 and 8 meeting, various technical committee meetings on Sunday. The highlight of the event was Sunday's welcome reception and Illuminations Awards dinner which included several prestigious IES awards being bestowed. Our own Lew Sternberg was awarded the Louis B. Marks award for outstanding service of a non-technical nature. Celebrating Lew's over 62 years of service to the IES. Lew's wife, children and grandchildren were in attendance to see him accept his award.

I hope you will be able to join us for the December program, where we will feature Lew as our speaker, and he will address the very important topic of how the IES can affect your life.

Our EP scholarship recipients would like to thank our members for their support!

"...In all, the conference sparked a desire to become lighting certified in order to become a more capable professional in the lighting field. Furthermore, understanding what is to come in the lighting industry. A grasp of future technologies and what is coming in the near future (the progress report which was utterly awesome) in order to have the tools to propose to customers to equip them with the cutting edge lighting. Finally, the intense networking allowed me to become close with those that I will be in the lighting industry for many years to come. Through conversations had over the conference, I have had a great deal of inspiration to become more involved with my local section...I cannot thank the local section of IES Cleveland enough for the opportunity! I cannot wait to become an active member of the society."

President's Report: Part 2 of 2

"I would like to take this time to thank you all for the scholarship that sent me to Indianapolis to attend the 2015 IES Conference. I was also able to go to the pre-conference and attend the Emerging Professional Workshop, the Leadership Forum, and the Illumination Awards over the weekend... The theme of the leadership forum was to make sure that we engage as IES members. We must make sure to connect with other IES members so that we may learn from their experiences, and share experiences of our own. IES, in and of itself, is a good opportunity to grow. I know that the Cleveland IES sponsors monthly speakers, but I also learned that the IES website is also a great resource to for digital seminars, reading research papers, IES section courses, and other special events. In addition, it was discussed how, as IES members, we could contribute back to the society and try to reach out to get others involved in IES... Thank you again for this wonderful opportunity to connect with other members of the IES, to grow as a person, and to learn more about the lighting industry."

—Dan Norton, Brewer Garrett
